Issue 23 – 14th Mai 2014

Dear Newsletter Readers,

Friday is the last day to register your booth at WINDFORCE 2014. Boasting around 250 international exhibitors, the second offshore trade fair in Germany has already become an established event. If you still wish to book any available floor space, we look forward to receiving your registration. Find out more in this newsletter about the new poster exhibition for research projects and the A2SEA golf tournament being held for the first time in Germany in conjunction with the WINDFORCE conference. We look forward to welcoming you to Bremen soon.

WINDFORCE 2014 Bremen

EWEA's president talks about the European market

At the focus of the conference is not only the German offshore market but also the question of what is going on internationally. What developments are there and what do policy objectives in other countries look like? These topics are at the heart of Session D on Wednesday, 18 June 2014, when Andrew Garrad, president of the European Wind Energy Association (EWEA) will provide an overview of the European markets, Pierre-Etienne Claveranne of Green Giraffe Energy Bankers will give us a closer look at the French market, and James Beal of UK Trade & Investment will talk about conditions in Britain in his presentation on "39 GW by 2030". "We are very pleased that this session has such prestigious speakers", says Jens Eckhoff, organiser of WINDFORCE, about the strong international presence. "WINDFORCE is not just the leading event for Germany but increasingly so for Europe too." Registrations for the conference will be accepted until 6 June at www.windforce2014.com.

WINDFORCE Dinner at Deutsche Windtechnik's headquarters

The 2014 WINDFORCE Dinner will be held at the headquarters of Deutsche Windtechnik on the historic premises of the Bremen steel mill's old plant, a location characterized by the charm of 100 years of industrial culture. Its proximity to good transport connections (whether road, rail or water) makes it ideal for the rapid and flexible transport of all components to installation sites. Deutsche Windtechnik has in recent years been able to successfully establish its division for wind facility maintenance at this location. The installation of a combined renewables power plant (consisting of three wind turbines, a photovoltaic system, a co-generation unit and a storage battery) independently supplies the company with power from 100 % renewable sources.

Guests at the WINDFORCE Dinner are invited to find out more about Deutsche Windtechnik, its headquarters and its service activities. Exciting exhibits will show you in detail what we have to offer, whether it's the onshore and offshore service of wind turbines, various major components, equipment, or service vehicles. Deutsche Windtechnik is looking forward to welcoming you! Reserve your seat at the dinner table for this special occasion. We look forward to enjoying an unforgettable evening with you.

Present your research project at WINDFORCE 2014

A brand-new feature of the trade fair is a poster exhibition for research projects. The exhibition area is directly across from the WAB and WINDFORCE Lounge. Poster exhibitors are welcome to use the WAB Lounge to talk about their projects. These research projects will be listed in the attractive WINDFORCE GUIDE exhibitor catalogue in a separate chapter with the name of the project and the institution responsible. Each poster space will include a brochure holder for information material, and several standing tables will be in the exhibition area for everyone to use. The prices for displaying a poster at the exhibition are:

- EUR 400 (net) for WAB members
- EUR 600 (net) for non-members

If you would like to present your research project at WINDFORCE 2014, send us your registration by Friday, 16 May 2014. For more information and to register, please go to: www.wab.net.

Offshore Wind Golf Tournament in Bremen

Since 2008, A2SEA has organised an annual Offshore Wind Golf Tournament. It has been held in England in recent years and will be in Bremen for the first time on 16 June 2014 at the Bremer Schweiz golf club. One day later, WINDFORCE 2014, the 10th WAB Offshore Conference and International Trade Fair, will open in Bremen.

This golf event offers the opportunity to participate in the tournament or in a training session with a professional trainer. Both golfers and non-golfers from the offshore wind industry can participate in the event. An evening dinner and awards ceremony offers a good opportunity for networking. Registrations are gladly accepted at www.a2sea-shop.com. The fee is EUR 150, of which EUR 20 will be donated to the German Childhood Cancer Foundation. We hope all participants enjoy a great day!
